WRITING

I think it's a very big problem nowadays: there are many old people who live alone or have nobody to take care of them. Very often elderly people have bad health and they are incapable of doing some things themselves. For example, taking a shower. There should always be someone who can help them. As for the technology mentioned in the article, I think it can be really useful. It can inform relatives if something is happened to their grandmother or grandfather. However, in my opinion people should visit their elderly relatives more often in any case. It's not a good idea to trust such technologies fully. Besides, elderly people are happy when they are visited by their relatives. If they have no relatives, I think a volunteer organisation may be found. It's members would take care of lonely elderly people. In conclusion I want to say that we must admit such problem exist and try to solve it
